I wish to support the proposed new local planning schedule, in particular the rezoning of areas, including my own property, from rural residential to landscape conservation. Doing this will assist protection of the remaining bush and forest ecosystems along the Huon. From the vantage point of my small boat, when sailing on the Huon River, I see just how much forested land has already been cleared. Given that each additional house built requires significant clearing around the house site to minimize bushfire danger, housing densification and subdivision, more likely under rural residential zoning, can only exacerbate loss of natural habitat. Large houses built at high elevation, necessitating long access driveways, have a particularly large footprint, and create ugly scarring of the landscape.
